Mrs. Elizabeth Colver, the lady assistant steward, was the only officer absent. F. A. The sum of $10 was voted to the secretary, Miss Alice I. Better Babies was the subject of a paper read by Mrs. Alice D. Barber of Norwich grange. It was in part as To those of you who have not fol-lowed this movement a Better Babies bureau is an association of men and women, directly or indirectly connected with the editorial staff of the Woman's Home Companion, who love babies and believe in this method as a means of raising the standard of health and hysiene among children. The work of the bureau is to encourage the holding of Better Babies contests as an aid to preventive medicine and method of helping children physically and mentally toward individual health and efficient citizenship. vidual health and efficient citizenship. Keep Boys and Girls on Farm. Rev. Lucian Drury of North Ston-ington spoke in an entertaining way upon the subject of How to Keep the Boys and Girls on the Farm.

Briefly, he suggested that it would be a wise and sensible way to treat the subject to talk about the first part of the topic mostly and then let the boys take the right and proper steps to keep the girls on the farm. On the subject of the boy, Rev. Mr. Drury said he would address his remarks to one individual, and that was the boy's father. In the first place, see to it that the boy has an attractive home. It is here that the boy receives his first impressions. Conditions have changed much for the better now, but in the old days dingy ceilings, poor furniture, unattractive exterior and little indica-tions of the influence of feminine taste inside the home were some of the characteristics. Then give him a cheerful room of his own. Don't ban-ish him to a cheerless den every night. just because he is a boy and don't seem to care now. Some day may come when you will care. Then be a companion to your boy. Take him along with you when you go to town, even if he does bother you with questions all the time. Let him ask all the questions he can and be glad that he is bright enough to ask questions. It will be a good time for you to frame answers to some of those questions that you want to some of the content of the conten juestions that you never got answered when you were a boy. Encourage the boy too to talk abou farm work and farm plans. There will be some lines in which he will be more particularly interested than in others and you will find out what they are and can help him along in those par-ticular subjects.

Then for his reading, when he gets

Then for his reading, when he gets old enough to read for himself, see that he has not trashy novels, but good agricultural reading upon the lines he is interested in. Let the father be sure to read them himself and talk them over with the boy. When the boy he worked out his one particular line he will want to get at another.

Don't fail too to give the boy a word of commendation for anything good that he has done. He'll appreciate the word of worthy praise that you will give him.

Don't work your boy too hard. Give him holidays and let him have wholesome amusements and be sure you don't impress upon his mind that the farmer's life is one long grind. Rev. Mr. Drury's last suggestion for the hoy's father was to take care of the boy's mother, see to it that she has boy's lather was to take care of the boy's mother, see to it that she has every labor saving device and she can be depended upon to do her full part towards making the boy's home the dearest place on earth.

This was followed by a piano duet, Qui Vive, by Mrs. Mosier and Miss Hanney of Konomoc grange, and a recitation, Hannibal Hawkins' Wedding, by Mrs. H. H. Leland of Konomoc grange.

Dollars and Cents Side.

Keeping Boys and Girls on the Farm was also the subject treated by A. J. Brundage of the Connecticut Agricultural college. He seld he proposed to emphasize the dollars and cents side of the subject. If we are going to keep the boys and girls, we have got to show them how they can have some money for themselves. When the boy and girl gets to a certain age, they begin to ask whether I can afford to stay at school any longer. The apparent lack of opportunity for making money on the farm has resulted in the boys and the coming session of court.

New London county Pomona grange, 50, 6, Patrons of Husbandry, had an ttendance of about 100 at its meeting farms. We have got to put business one of the reasons for abandoned farms. We have got to put business principles into application on the farm, but we don't want to keep all the boys on the farm. Some of them would have their spirit broken if kept there, but there are enough opportunities and inducements to keep a lot of them there. What we need to do is to show these to them.

Mr. Brundage made the suggestion that there be a difference in the curriculum between city and country schools, the latter to be adapted more to the environment and to teach some-thing more of things around them ev-ery day.

To keep the boys on the farm, Mr.
Brundage advised that they be given some responsibility and some property of their own from which they could have some money of their own. In-stead of a "back to the land" move-of their own from which they could have some money of their own. Instead of a "back to the land" movement, we want to institute a "stay on the land" movement.

Economic conditions have changed and there is a chance now for the boy to make money on the farm. The average boy in the corn clubs last year made $51 and in potato clubs about $25 per acre. An 11 year old boy in Mansfield in a corn club won two $50 prizes in the last year, doing all the work except the plowing on a balf acre of corn. His plot was right alongside his father's. Father got 60 bushels per acre, but son got 102 bushels. Next year father is going to raise his corn the way son did. Mr. Brundage showed how the club work is contagious among the children and how other boys and other girls take it up when they find what one of their number can do. It results also in better and then he ran upstairs where he roused the children and told them to get out as fast as they could. Some grabbed clothing. Others didn't have the chance. The younger children Kitsky carried out. The older ones when they find what one of their number can do. It results also in better work in the schools and in an im-proved spirit in the homes. Poultry clubs, corn clubs, hog raising clubs, canning clubs, sewing clubs, potato clubs and dairy clubs are some of the lines in which the effort is being made to interest the boys and girls and county prizes are to be given.

With the garden and canning club work there is opportunity to show the girls how they can make some money on the farm and it is just as impor-

on the farm, and it is just as impor-tant to keep the girls as to keep the boys. Wherever six boys or girls will become interested a demonstration of canning will be given for their benefit and show them how to do any kind of and show them how to do any kind of canning they want to do. This will solve the problem of the utilization of waste product which is the thing that is troubling us now. As soon as we readjust the economic conditions we will keep more of our boys and girls in the country.

There was a report current in the capitol Thursday that there was to be another meeting of the committee and effort made to BRIDGEPORT MAN rescind the action. It was represented the question, which was explained that one of these four was to have voted in favor of the proposition but voted against, and the other three followed him as the leader. This report would indicate that the committee had been "fixed," but investigation revealed that the report was groundless.

When Representative Henderson of Norwich, a member of the committee heard this report, he immediately in-terviewed the other members of the committee who stood by him in his contest against the proposition, and they informed him that they had made no mistake in their vote and would stand by that vote. Therefore, the vote of the committee will stand, provote of the committee will stand, pro-vided, of course, the legislators are honorable men, and most of them are, and absolutely above suspicion. An unfavorable report of the committee is due in the house and if it is not forthcoming the Norwich representa-tives will sak the reacon why.
